MosconeWarns Supervisors Of Closed-Door Syndrome

State Senator George R. Moscone, the Senate's Majority Floor Leader, recently warned that the State's legislative process is being "corrupted" by the increasing trend for small grups of legislators and the Governor to make major decisions behind closed doors.

Speaking to some 250 county supervisors at a luncheon meeting at the Annual Conference of the Association of County Supervisors in Monterey, the San Francisco Democrat pointed to the newly enacted welfare and Medi-Cal legislation, the state budget and the recent tax reform talks as examples of what he termed "the closed-door syndrome in Sacramento."

Moscone admitted that he has been a "reluctant participant" in the recent tax reform discussions between the Governor and a select group of legislators from both parties. He said, though, that he felt increasing misgivings at the method.

"Such sessions obviously violate the democratic process," he declare. "More that that, the results are usually submitted to the Assembly and the Senate on a 'take it or leave it' basis."

He added that such sessions tend to produce legislation that has not been thoroughly analyzed and examined. "The political solutions of welfare reform and Medi-Cal reform, arrived at the such meetings, may come back to haunt us," he said.

Already the courts are striking down major portions of these recently enacted "reforms" as unconstitutional or in violation of state or federal law, Moscone pointed out.

He warned Supervisors that the new welfare and Medi-Cal laws may come back to haunt them, too, when they see increased county costs as a result of the so-called reforms.

He said he had voted against both measures because they were "hurriedly passed on the way to the August recess, without sufficient data to substantiate any claims that these reforms would result in lower costs."

A national solution to the welfare problem is the only sensible alternative, he said.

He added that most of the fault for the closed-door meetings lies with Governor Reagan. "After months of trying to express the legislative will and being told that the Governor would not accept our bipartisan conclusions, it appeared the only way out was to pack our legislative bags and seclude ourselves in the 'corner office' with the Governor," Moscone said.

A former member of the San Francisco Board of Supervisors, Moscone urged association members to be more outspoken in Sacramento about their counties' needs. "You had better speak out and even kick and scream a little about expenditure control, before it is too late."

Moscone, who was elected with the highest margin of victory of any State Senator in the 1970 elections, also warned that government officials at all levels must "tune in" on desires and demands of the 18-to-21 vote.

"I do not believe that the next time any public official in this room stands for office, he will have any trouble hearing or understanding the message, because it will be delivered in great part by the newly-enfranchised 18-21 year old voter," he commented.

"They do not want to hear why we cannot do something," he said. "They are determined to figure out how we can do it."

Moscone, who serves on the Senate Committees on Judiciary, Education, Revenue and Taxation and Elections and Reapportionment. First elected in 1966, he was named Democratic Floor Leader in 1967 and has been re-elected to that post each year since by this Senate Democratic colleagues.

Pollution Control Changed

A changed version of the joint powers agreement for the projected Monterey Peninsula Water Pollution Control Agency was adopted last week by the Pacific Grove City Council and directors of the Seaside Sanitation District.

The official paper now binds the signers not only to implement a joint sewage collection and outfall system by July 1974 but to pursue the goal of wastewater reclamation and reuse.

On October 22, Monterey city councilmen were rebuffed by the state on a request to extend the deadline for dumping effluent into the Monterey Bay, and are expected to review the agreement at a study session at 4:30 p.m. Monday.

The Monterey officials had asked time to study a total relaamation program and possibly skip and intermediate step calling for a single ocean outfall about 6,000 feet off Point Pinos.

Although the request was rejected, the Central Coast Regional Water Quality Control Board did order stronger language in portions of the joint powers agreement relating to reclamation and reuse.

At a special session in the late afternoon the agreement was adopted by the Seaside board and in the evening by councilmen of Pacific Grove. A key phase states that subject to findings of a feasibility study "the future goal of the agency and regional entity shall be consolidation of all member treatment plants and wastewater reclamation and reuse."

Pacific Grove's action included an ordinance authorizing the city to enter the agreement establishing the agency and to spend up to $5,000 during the current fiscal year as its share of administrative expenses including the approving of a contract, between the agency and federal government to include Fort Ord in the regional system.

TRICK OR TREAT - These two lovely young ladies were part of Halloween festivities held at Seaside Branch of Bank of America. Clown Karen Brown and Washwoman Antoinette "Tony" Frazier were just two of employees who joined in spirit of day. Almost everybody working was in costume.

SouthernConference Directors Coming

Two directors of the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF), and interracial organization working to bring Black and white people togeather for action to solve their common problems will arrive on the Monterey Peninsula this Friday at Noon, November 5.

The directors are Mrs. Virginia Collins and Carl Braden, their events will include the following:

At 12:30 p.m., on Friday November 5, at Monterey Peninsula College for meeting with students; 2 p.m. a pot luck lunch sponsored by women's international league of 1005 Jewell, in Pacific Grove. Information is obtainable at 375-1610; 6 p.m., Ecumenical Agape (sharing of bread and wine in spirit of love and peace) Kimball and Noche Buena, Seaside. This session will be on the eve of massive legal demonstrations against the war in cities across the nation.

At 8 p.m., a study in resistance at Monterey Peninsula College, Lecture Forum 102 co-sponsored by Black Student Union Arthur Waldrup president, will introduce speakers and the English Department.

Mrs. Collins and Mr. Braden will discuss the case of her son, Walter Collins, an activist in the Black liberation movement, who is now serving a five-year sentence for refusing to be drafted. Walter Collins has been active in civil rights movements since high school and took part in the sit-ins of the early 1960's. He worked on voter registration drives in the south and for the last two years he has worked on the staff of SCEF, building coalitions between Black people and poor, working class whites.

A reception will be held at 9:30 p.m., sponsored by the National Council of Negro Women (Monterey Chapter) with Mrs. Marion Woodie, president of St. Matthias Church in Seaside.

The organization was formed in 1935 by Mary McCloud Bethunen born in the south 12 years following the emancipation proclomation. Mrs. Bethune also founded Bethune Cockman College in Datona Beach, Florida. Info at 394-2719, or 372-4773 for questions.

Retail Sales Increase

Retail sale in Monterey increased in the second quarter of 1971 over the same period of 1970 as reported by the State Board of Equalization.

The recently released quarterly report of taxable retail transactions shows a sales volume of $6,929,000 for April, May and June of 1971 in the City of Seaside. Sherrell Watson, General Manager of the Monterey Peninsula Chamber of Commerce reports that this is a $779,000 increase over the same three months of apparel stores, general merchandise stores, drug stores, food stores, package liquor stores, eating and drinking places, home furnishings and appliances, building materials and implements, automobiles and auto supplies, service stations and miscellaneous retail stores.

Break Bread For Peace

An ecumenical agape will be celebrated tomorrow (Friday) at St. Mattias Mission in Seaside. On the eve of the national anti-war demonstration, this service is meant to be a witness to the community that local clergy and laity are also concerned about our government's continued involvement in the war in Southeast Asia.

This service will be a people's commitment to peace.

Appropriate contemporary readings and music, Old and New Testament selections, traditional hyms, a lytany for peace written by Mrs. Bradford Parker and spontaneous intercession will be part of the service.

The climax of the service will be an agape, which is the sharing of bread and wine in the spirit of love and peace.

Some of the participants in the ceremony will be Roger Lorenz, Mrs. William Shirey, Bob Vaughn, Mrs. James Rivers and Victoria Plaisted.

People of all faiths are invited to attend the services. Servicemen are especially welcome.

Accepting Applications

Admission applications for the fall 1972 semester will be accepted by San Jose State College November 1 through November 30.

All applications received during the month of November, the initial filing period, will receive equal consideration regardless of the date received, emphasized Roy Delpier, SJSC Admission Officer.

Prospective students may obtain applications at any local high school or community college or may pick up one at the Admissions Office on campus.

The November filing period will mark the second year of the California State Colleges' Common Admissions Program under which applicants list as many as 18 alternative colleges in order of prererence on the same application.

Meeting For Seniors Here

The New Horizons Senior Citizens Program of Monterey County will hos the next Executive Board Meeting of the California Legislative Council of Older Americans.

Mrs. Irene Simmons, state Secretary of the organization invites all older persons in the Country to attend the all day meeting. Discussion will be centered on legislation that pertains to senior citizens.

The conference will begin at 10 a.m. with a break for lunch, and continue until 3 p.m. All interested persons can call 394-6877 and 375-6332 for further information.

Learn More About Cancer

Myths about cancer will be distinguished from the facts at a meeting, open to the public, which will be held next Friday evening, November 12 at 7 p.m. at the Family Planning Clinic, 1123 Fremont Boulevard.

The discussion will be sponsored by the American Cancer Society as a part of Cancer Education Week, November 8 - 15, according to the rev. G. E. Ellis, the Society's education chairman for Seaside.

"We will show one or two short films and a physician will be on hand to answer questions," said Rev. Ellis. "Too few people know that cancer is often curable and that some types can be prevented from occuring at all. We hope that many Seaside residents will take the opportunity during Cancer Education Week to find out which are the myths and which are the facts about cancer."

Free literature will be available, said Rev. Ellis. Included in this will be copies of an article written by Helen O. Dickens, M. D., a professor of gynecology and obstetrics at the Hospital of the University of Pennsylvania, who has been named a distinguished daughter of Pennsylvania by the governor of that state for being the first black woman to be made a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons.

Food Baskets Will Be Distributed

For the third consecutive year, members of the Community Counseling Office of the Monterey Peninsula Unified School District are planning to give food baskets to the needy families living on the Peninsula.

Contributions for the baskets will be accepted at Highwand Elementary School, 1650 Sonoma Avenue, Seaside, ununtil noon on November 22. If it is inconvenient for anyone to bring their donation to the school, arrangements can be made to have them picked up by calling 649-7281, 649-2782 or 394-2719.

The baskets will be distributed the evening of November 23 at Highland School beginning at 6:30.

Further information may be obtained by contactin the Community Counseling Office at Highland School.

PG&E Warns Homeowner

Pacific Gas and Electric Company warns householders not to admit strangers who claim to be PG&E employees unless they show proper identification.

"All PG&E employees carry credentials and will be happy to show them to you," a company spokesman said. "Although all employees do not wear clip on identification badges, they all have billfold type cards showing their names and pictures."

Scattered instance of crimes being committed in Northern and Central California by men posing as repairmen or inspectors have been reported. The crimes involver burglary, robbery or "charges" for fake repairs or adjustments.

"If you are approached under suspicious circumstances by men claiming to be servicemen, report the incident to the police and to the company," the spokesman said. "If you have any doubt wheter the person is from PG&E or if his identity card is authentic, please telephone the local PG&E office and ask for verification," he suggested.

Farrell Going South

Seaside City Manager Milton R. Farrell announced his acceptance of another job recently, to accept an offer to become manager of Lakewood, a city of more than 90,000 in Los Angeles County. His appointment becomes effective December 1, this year.

News of Farrel's decision was learned at a special meeting of the city council and he described his decision as based on the opportunity for "obvious advancement" in his career.

Farrell took the Seaside post nearly 2-1/2 years ago, following nine years as city administrator of Rosemead, also in Los Angeles County.

Advance

Farrell, 47, said in a prepared statement, "I would like to emphasize that I did not apply for this position and it was only after considerable deliberation that I decided their offer was simply too attractive to refuse. I believe this to be an obvious advancement in my career and their offer included a substantial salary increase."

Farrell would not reveal his present Lakewood salary, but he's -presently making $24,000 in Seaside.

"The city is now in the "unfortunate" position of undergoing two major changes in personnel, including that of the city attorney. Las Monday the city council selected Carey W. Royster, now assistant city attorney of Fremont (Alameda County) for that post.

Mayor Louis N. Haddad said in order to ease the transition, Royster who had been scheduled to start December 1, had agreed to attend council meetings in November. That, he said, would neccessitate terminating the services of interim attorneys since the firing of Saul M. Wingarten a year ago this month.

Farrell, who came to Seaside after the sudden death of City manager Gordon Forrest, weathered one of the most stormy periods, politically, in the city's history, but he said, that he feels the city's political unrest had settled down and that Sea-Side now has "an excellent and unified city council to carry out the business of the city on a high level of achievement."

A key project to be completed after his departure, Farrel said, is a blending of commercial, park and recreation uses in the Laguna Grande redevelopment project area, for which contracts for ecological and landscaping studies recently were signed.

He said he felt "confident" the projects presently proposed for Laguna Grande will do much to achieve a fine new image for the city.

"If projects are carried out," he said, it will mean preservation of ecology, and creation of new commercial developments which will provide jobs and additional revenue to more properly finance the city's operation.

I see where the Foreign Aid Bill was defeated in the United States Senate last week for the first time in its history. For the last 25 years-since the end of World War II-we have been dishing out money in the form of Foreign Aid to the tune of billions of dollars per year. Immediately after the war, these expenditures had some validity. They helped to rebuild nations ravaged by war. Hunger and disaster stalked the nations of Europe and Americans, in their usual generosity, could do no less than to try to help those nations so that they could become self-sustaining once more. As new nations began emerging in Africa and Asia again we were called on to help them get on their feet so that they, too, - no matter how large or small - could become members of the world community. We have also been sending money in various forms to the nations in Latin America and they too have progressed to the extent that many of them have become self-sustaining through their own economy.

Now, we here in America are faced with an economic crisis, which had to be solved. Inflation and the adverse balance of payments situation had begun to drain our economy to the point that we have more employed than at any time in recent history. It is time that we begin to look after our own and not spend money for foreign aid that is more badly needed here at home. By that, I don't mean that we should withdraw into total isolation. To the contrary, we should pursue our role in foreign affairs with an added vigor on all fronts. However, we will have to do it in ways other than just hand-

VACATION ABROAD

Miss Lotteye Holmes of Richmond, California, a frequent visitor on the peninsula, has just completed a marvelous tourist trip which took her to England, Spain, Portugal and North Africa.

On October 9, Miss Holmes left from Los Angeles International Airport on the Caledonian ?Bua Airways Jet flight to London. After brief customs formalities, the tourist were welcomed by the tour's escort. From the airport they continued by motorcoach through the beautiful surrey countryside to London.

With apopulation approaching 10,000,000, London dates back to Roman times, yet "swings" into the '70s. While there, sightseeing tours included Oxford and Regent Streets, Piccadilly Circus with its statue of eros, Grosvenor Square, where many took pictures of the magnificent American Embassy, Hyde Park and Parliament Square. They also visited the Houses of Parliament and Westminster Abbey. The tour continued up Whitehall past Downing Street and on to Buckingham Palace, where each witnessed the changing of the guard ceremony.

On the evening of October 12, they flew from London to Madrid. Spain's gracious capital has doubled her population in the last five years and has become one of Europe's finest shopping centers. There, Lottye enjoyed her tour thru the Royal Palace built by the Bourbans in the 18th century. After driving through the Puerto Del Sol, the picturesque centrepoint of the city, they visited the Prado Museum with masterpieces by El Greco, Goya, Rubens and Titian. The tourist returned to their hotels through the beautiful Retiro Park.

On Oct 15, they left Madrid for a visit to the ancient city of Toledo, now a Spanish National Monument. They continued to Avila and across the plains of Castile to Salamanca. Continuing westward, they entered Portugal at Vilar Formoso and continued through the pleasant Portuguese contryside to Coimbra. There they visited the picturesque fishing village of Nazare and the nearby resort of San Matinho Do Porto. They drove past Sintra with its ornate moorish palace and through the fishing village of Cascais to Lisbon, which in the opinion of many is the finest capital city of Europe with its fine old buildings, wide tree-lined avenues and its pictureque old quarters. While in Lisbon they toured St. George's Castle, once a moorish stronghold; the Handicraft Museum; the Tower of Belem and the Restauradres Square. On the morning of October 19, the tour recrossed the Portuguese-Spanish border at Elvas and after visiting the picturesque old town of Badajos they deaded south through the Aracana Mountains to the fabulous andalusian city of Seville, with its characteristic scent of orange blossom. Siatuated on the Guadalquivir River, historic Seville is one of Spain's highlight cities and is the home of Flamenco dancing. There they toured the mighty cathedral with the gateway of Pardon and the Giralda Treasures.

The tour continued to drive to Jerez, the home of Sherry. Then along the beatiful coast road to Algeciras in time to join the ferry boat across the Straits of Gibraltar to Africa. On October 22, they arrived in the international city of Tangier, the western equivalent of Hong Kong, complete with colorfully dressed Arabs and veiled women. Sightseeing took them to the Casbah, where most haggle for bargains, to the splendour of the Sultan's Palace and a drive along the coast road to Rabat to see Hassan's Tower on the way to Casablanca. One of the finest resorts on the African/Atlantic coast, Casablanca retains its moorish identity with Mosques and Minarets. Here they visited the King's Palace, the Tomb of Sidu Bou Surara, El Hank Lighthouse and the Medina native quarters.

On October 24, driving inland past Rommani and Kheimisset, they reached Meknes, which is entirely encircled by 25 miles of ramparts and bastions. They continued to Fez, the oldest of the Moroccan imperial cities, in time to visit the colorful market place with its snake charmers and Dervish dancers.

Skirting the Rif Mountains and passing through the colorful town of Quezzane and Chefchaouene, they continued to Tangier for the short crossing of the Straits of Gilbralter and then along the Costa Del Sol to Malaga, which is one of Spain's brightest cities and noted, with neighbouring torremolinos, for its splendid nigh life and its shopping. On the morning of October 27, the tour headed inland through the mountains to Granada, which is possible the finest city in all Spain. Here they toured the Alhambra, former home of the Caliphs and the Generalife Gardens. They continued their journey through Andalusia to the city of Cordoba, where they drove thru the Arab quarters and a visit to the great Mosque. On October 29, the group continued across the river Guadalquivir where they passed Manzanares on their way to Madrid for their evening flight black to London. The left London on their flight home

London on their flight home on October 30.

Miss Holmes, a sociologist in the Bay area, was an usher during the Monterey Jazz Festival his year.

Officers Elected

Mrs. Kenneth R. Liechty was elected President of the Officer Student Wives' Club of the Naval Postgraduate School at its October 20 meeting in Herrmann Hall.

Others elected at the fashion show and meeting were Mrs. John H. Rickelman, first vice president; Mrs. Ronnie G. Carter, second vice president; Mrs. Donald Heath, corresponding secretary; Mrs. W. Frederick Whitson, recording secretary and Mrs. Tem Bugarin, treasurer.

This OSWC Executive Board will serve until April 1972.

Register At Fort Ord

Registration in Monterey Peninsula College's "On Post" education program at Fort Ord is being held this week at the military installation. It will continue through tomorrow (Friday).

Featured in the second eight-week session this fall will be 10 credit classes which are transferable to four-year institutions in California and around the country. The program is open to military personnel and their dependents; civilian employees of the Army, the Post Exchange and the Wage Board and their families and to all other interested persons.

Student may register at Building 1047 from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily. Civilians are encouraged to register on today (Thursday). Instruction will start November 15.

The registration fee for the classes is $5 for military and $13 for civilians. All classes will be taught in the former officer's club building, the "Hitching Post," which has recently been renovated.

Classes will meet twice each week from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. On Mondays and Wednesdays, courses offered include: English Composition, Introduction to Aviation, Intermediate Applied Algebra, Political Science and Principles of Economics. On Tuesdays and Thursdays, classes offered include General Psuchology, Administration of Justice, Introduction to Data Processing, Sociology and Principles of Accounting.

Vanderbilt Exhibit At Museum

The collages and painting of Gloria Vanderbilt will be exhibited at the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art, 559 Pacific Street, during the month of November.

The highly-acclaimed show has been seen in San Francisco by hundreds of people during its exposition at the Hervert Hoover Gallery.

Miss Vanderbilt, who is 47 years old, is best remembered for having inherited $2,300,000 from her father, Reginald Vanderbilt, when she was two years old. She spent eight years in the theater, has written poetry and short stories and has had a book on collages published. She has painted since childhood and has returned to that and designing her sole creative work.

The exhibit will be open to the public starting this Saturday, October 30. There is an admission charge of fifty cents to members of the Museum and children and $1 to the general adult public.

The Museum is open from 10 am to 5 pm Tuesday through Friday, and from 2 p m to 5 p m on Saturdays and Sundays. It is closed on Mondays and holidays.

Volunteer Is Honored

Six years as an Army Community Services volunteer is the record set by Mrs. Jose Figueroa. And it is a record that is hard to beat because the ACS organization just celebrated its sixth anniversary this year. Mrs. Figueroa was honored recently for her outstanding volunteer work and presented with the six-year device to the ACS pin. That is, she received a five-year plus a one-year device because the rare six-year one on order had not been delivered in time.

Mrs. Figueroa, who started as a volunteer with Ft. Ord ACS in July 1966, began her ACS work in Augsberg, Germany, in August 1965.

She is now a resident of Marina.

Learn About Local Indians

"Indians of Monterey County," a slide program by archaeologist Donald M. Howard, will be presented tomorrow (Friday) at 7:30 p.m. in Carmel High School's Brey Hall.

Howard, who is president of the Monterey County Archaeological Society, is widely recognized as an authority on local Indians. He has probably done more archaeological work in Monterey County than any other individual. He is also the author of papers published in Noticias del Puerto de Monterey, Monterey County Archaeological Society Quarterly and elsewhere.

The program, first in a projected series on local archaeology, is being presented free by the Monterey County Archaeological Society. It will be an introduction to local Indians and Indian remains.

For further information on the program or the Society, call Tony Graham on 624-5430.

Check Now For Diabetes

The Northern California Diabetes Association will conduct a massive Detection Program to find the unknown diabetic throughout Northern California during November 1971.

Over 800 pharmacies are participating in this program which is co-sponsored by the Norther California Pharmaceutical Association.

Northern California Diabetes Association serves forty eight counties and there are pharmacies in all of these counties where free Diabetes Test Kts can ob obtained. Kits are free and are displayed at prescription counters of participating drug stores. Get enough for all the family. Take the test and send it in per instructions contained on the inner flap of the test ket envelope.

Today over 4,000,000 Americans have diabetes. Of these, at least 1,600,000 do not yet know they have it. More than 5,600,000 Americans now living will develop diabetes during their lives. One person in four-50,000,000 Americans-- is believed to be a "carrier" of diabetes. These can transmit diabetes to their offspring, theough they may never develop the condition themselves.

Diabetes can be controlled. It is a chronic condition. The sooner it is discovered the better are a person's chances of living a full, productive, satisfying life. The three principal means of control are: (1) carefully planned diet, (2) regulated exercise and (3) if necessary, injection of insulin which the bady lacks. There are also medicines takin by mouth, which are sufficient in some cases. Diet and exercise are the first essentials of treatment. Often they are all that are required.

The most common sysmptoms of diabetes are Excessive thirst; frequent urination; itching; constant hunger; cuts and scratches heal slowly; excessive loss of weight. But some people have diabetis with none of these symptoms.

NORMALLY the sugars and starches in the food we eat are converted to a form of sugar called glucose. With the aid of insulin, the blood stream distributes this glucose to the body cells. There it is coverted to ready energy or stored for future use. Insulin is a natural hormone produced by the pancreas, a large gland which lies behind the stomach. With diabetes the pancreas fails to produce enough insulin or makes insulin which is unable to perform all its work. Glucose then accumulates in the blood until some of the surplus is eliminated by the kidneys and passed off in the urine.

Hence there is sugar in the urine and too much sugar in the blood are signs of diabetes. Unless promptly detected and controlled it can lead to serious illness.

Take the free test for diabetes by following simple directions on the flap on the test kit envelope. If you take a test kit be sute to use it.

The Northern California Diabetes Association will process test kits and inform participants it their test was normal or abnormal. If abnormal the individual will be advised to see their physician to confirm the findings.

Donates Model

Specialist Four Robert D. Jenkins, a student of Russian at the Defense Language Institute, West Coast Branch, has donated a model of Moscow's famous Red Square to the East Slavic Division, DLIWC. Spec. 4 Jenkins constructed the model as a class project and included an essay on Russian architecture with it.

The Square is constructed of chip board and is built to scale and measures approximately three feet by five feet. There are five main structures on the Square: St. Basil's Cathedral, the east wall of the Kremlin, the Historical Museum, the Lenin Mausoleum and the State Universal Department Store.

Spec. 4 Jenkins is no stranger to this type of model construction. However this was his first attempt at Russian architecture. He has a Bachelor of Science degree in math from Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut and has completed three years of graduate work in architecture at the University of Pennsylvania.

Spec. 4 Jenkins graduated from the Russian course recently and received the Martin Kellogg Award for his exceptional achievement in the understanding of Russian culture.

Upon completion of his military service he plans to return to graduate school and complete his preparation for a career in architecture.

Photography Offered

The Monterey Adult School has announced a new course offering in beginning photography, which will begin Tuesday, November 2. Lou Peresenyi will teach this adult class at Monterey High School, meeting each Tuesday evening from 7 to 9:30 p.m.

This course is designed as an introduction to photography and the use of the camera as a hobby. In addition, it will try to develop proficiency in photographic techniques and to develop a facility for creative expression through photography. Upon completing basic skill requirements, students will be exposed to a variety of specialized areas such as portrait, sports, nature or press photography and then encouraged to select one area for technique refinement.

Registration fee is $3, plus small lab fee. Persons interest in enrollment may contact the adult school office at either Monterey High School or Seaside High sschool, Monday through Thursday between the hours of 6:30 and 9:30 p.m. Telephone information may be obtained by calling 649-7386 or 649-7188.

PTA Awakened

Members of 20th District PTA were stirred, if no shocked, out of any tendency to complacency when Anthony Ruiz spoke to them on the subject of bringing minority groups into school-related activities. Ruiz, who teaches Spanish and English at Gabilan College, Hollister, was guest speaker for the recent luncheon meeting held at the Imperial Star Restaurant in Aptos.

"PTA has a very important role, much more significant than you realize," stated Ruiz. "Passing laws to force integration doesn't mean anything in the long run, unless you can bring aobut functional integration in the community."

This is where organizations like the PTA could play a leading role, Ruiz believes. But they are, he says, going to have to change a lot of their attitudes and ways of operating.

Noting that his remarks would apply eqully to any minority group, Ruiz used the Mexican-American as his frame of reference because he is one himself. "Here is how Mexican-Americans see you," he told his audience. "They see you as arrogant. Anglo-Saxons," he continued, "are known for their attitude of superiority over other groups. They think their way of life is best and cannot conceive of anyone being happy in another culture. School text books are based on this attitude."

"Mexican-Americans despise the PTA," Ruiz continued. "They see you as an arm of the institutions which are trying to rid them of their cultural heritage and 'Americanize' them." Just as they distrust teachers and the government, so they distrust the PTA. They look PTA meetings as a place where people demonstrate pride in the educational achievements of their children When so many minority group children are educationally handicapped or behind in school, the parents simply do not feel comfortable at school-realted functions.

Ruiz stated that "the PTA is a victim of the social structure," Though not intentionally, it is a middle-class organization which poor people do not want to join.

However, there is a real change of climate among Mexican-Americans, Ruiz believes and the PTA should take advantage of this, for it has much to offer. There is a large group of Mexican-Americans who want to take the best from the Mexican and the Anglo cultures. They are waiting for some kind of direction. Ruiz urged the PTA to step in and give them this direction.

There is also a large group of chicanos, proud of the term but also frustrated and insecure, said Ruiz. They have been unsuccessfull at producing changes in the social structure. No longer are they saying "we have to help ourselves." Now they say "we must educate other organizations to see our potential." They are wanting to cooperate and make new contacts, as never before.

Ruiz recommended that the PTA change its recruitment approach by using liaison people, that it change its way of operating to include many more people and that it change its activities to reflect the wishes and nees of all groups within the community.

Play Is Opening

The Staff Players of Children's Experimental Theatre a newly formed acting group on the Peninsula, has announced the opening on November 12 of a comedy by Philip Lewis, "The American Dame".

The play is directed by Marcia Hovick and performed by staff members as a benefit for the non-profit Children's theatre.

In the play, Lewis attempts, through authentic documents and letters, to explain the American woman and how she got where she is today.

Beginning with Adam's first difficulties with the new girl Eve, the mystifying relationship between the sexes rolics through history to modern suburban America. Being concerned with the American woman, Lewis naturraly had to consider the American man and how he helped or hindered along the way.

Performances will be given in the Forest Theatre in the Ground, below the main stage every Friday and Saturday evening at 8:30 p.m. For information and reservations call 624-1531.

ing out money. Nobody, either nation or person makes permanent friends by giving them money. In the long run the recipients begin to resent it because that money always has strings attached to it - just like the money you get from your mother-in-law or even your dad. It has strings attached even though the strings may be made of gossamer silver threads. You have to pay for it somehow.

This so-called foreign aid wouldn't have been too bad in many respects, if it had really reached the people that it was supposed to help. But most of the time, just like many government programs in this country that are designed to help the people, much of the money is siphoned off of the top by the bureaucrats who are running the program. In the case of foreign aid, many times it is actually stolen off of the top by unscrupulous leaders in the countries receiving the aid.

Even worse than that, we have used our money to attempt to buy allegiance from certain. governments. Even that hasn't worked as is evidenced by the way some of these governments voted against our pressure on the matter of China in the United Nations. I don't blame those governments for voting against our position; they have their own pleple to answer to. And we should learn, as I stated earlier, that you can't buy allegiance. The most disgraceful thing that has happened in the use of our foreign aid has been the way that many government heads like Chaing Ki Shek of Formosa and Singhman Rhee of Korea, not to mention what the leaders of South Vietnam, must be salting money away in Swiss banks and have and have used our money to become independently wealthy. The worst part about it is that our leaders know that this is going on and they continue giving them money because these so-called leaders are "Anti-Communist."

We have fed money into Portugal and Spain to ruthless military dictators who use the money to put down any form of democratic expression by their people. Yet, again, we use the excuse of "Anti-Communism." We have supported dictatorships in Cuba, Venezuela, Brazil and Argentina and each of those governments have all but destroyed any semblance of democracy. In the case of Cuba a revolution replaced our favorite, Bautista and we have had to live with a communist government at our doorsten because of our blind "Anti-Communism." Look at how we continue to send millions of dollars to the present government of Greece, which is a known military dictatorship that has jailed newspapermen for daring to tell the truth. Through our foreign aid we are hardly ever on the side of the people we seem always to be on the side of those who would subdue the people and keep them from their democratic ambitions - to be free.

I am not native enough to believe that the reason that we cut off this particular foreign aid money was to pursue a new course of foreign policy that would identify us with the democratic aims of the peoples of the world as opposed to the economic aims of our powerful corporations who have investments in foreign countries such as Spain and Greece. But I am astute enough to know that it is an expression by the United States Senate thay they are fed up with spending our hard earned tax money to maintain people in power who could care less about us and to start at some point to look out for our own interests first. If this puts the United States in the position of being called "isolationist," then so be it.

We have reached the point where our citizen taxpayers should be given some relief and where some of our rich foreign friends like Japan, Germany, England, France and others can began carrying some of the load. They too are anti-communist, but don't like to spend any of their money to fight it. They are only too glad to let the American taxpayer be the patsy.

As I See It

By Mel Vercoe

Why do the western movies about Indians and settlers always have the Indians riding their horses in a circle around the settlers who are trying to avoid arrows by hiding behind their wagons? Why don't they sometime have the settlers riding in a circle around some Indians who are hiding behind the wagons? Anyway, it all makes for suspense and a lot of action as everybody but the Indians in the audience roots for the settlers.

The bad guys and the good guys are still with us, but they are often difficult to identify. A fellow building some apartments is a bad guy because he is cutting trees and covering up some nature and before long some people will move into the apartments and flush more sewage into inadequate sewage systems that will in turn ruin the ocean, which is always on the receiving end just because it happens to be the lowest place around and water always tends to run downhill.

On the other hand, many people do not have decent places to live, and we need more apartments, so the builder is a hero. By the time you read this our government will have dotonated a hydrogen bomb a mile below the surface of Amchitka Island in the Aleutian chain, and our government is a hero because we have to find out for sure that the detonator on this type of bomb (250 times as powerful as the Hiroshima bomb) will work when we someday have to use it on some bad Chinese or Russians or Nazis or Japanese. Imagine the embarrassment if we dropped a dud right in the middle of Moscow and they sent us pictures of it.

But then, maybe the Nixon administration is not so heroic. Perhaps the two hundred million dollars could have been spent in better ways. Perhaps that much money spent on a study of how to achieve peace in the world might have done more good than perfecting an instrument of mass death. However, even achieving peace is a scary thought - what on earth could ever replace preparation for war in our unstable economy? So, it is largely a matter of personal viewpoint when we try to pinpoint the heroes and the villains. Sometimes the war proponents are the heroes if they can convince enough onlookers that war readiness and even aggressive genocide as in Vietnam are honorable by virtue of defending us against real or imaginary or falsely represented dangers. In such a case a prime candidate for villain would be a gathering of people who will meet at 6 p.m. Friday evening at the St. Matthias Episcopal Church in Seaside. The CIA will probably be there, because everybody else at the meeting will be hoping to learn something or contribute some ideas that may make peace as popular as war as a means of doing our thing on this earth.

As a candidate for Congress I shall be walking on thin ice, politically speaking, because I shall be there, and I am a card carrying member of a group called "Mothers and Others for Peace," which could be disastrous to my campaign in a community that has for nearly ten years supported almost unopposed a Congressman who is committed to continuing the war in Asia. But, then, I don't think I would be much of a Congressman, myself, if I couldn't be honest with my own conscience. So, I hope to see you Friday, and who knows? Maybe historians will say we were the heroes and the other guys were the bad guys.

Your Social Security

Q -- I am a widow with four young children. I expected my Social Security benefits to stop when I went to work full time. But I still get the same amount every month. Why?

A -- With four young chilfren, your family is still entitled to the maximum benefit amount based you your husban's earnings. Families with three or more survivors entitled to monthly benefits usually get this maximum. Since your four children continue to collect Social Security your family keeps getting the same amount -- the family maximum -- whether you work or not. Stopping your check and increasing the amount paid to each of your children could cause an interruption in your payments. For this reason, and to save administrative costs, the checks continue in your name.

Q -- I'm a gardener and I work for a number of different people. Does this work count for Social Security benefits?

A -- If you are paid $50 or more from at least one of your employers in a calendar quarter, your earnings from that employer are covered under Social Security as wages. If, on the other hand, you work on a contract basis (by the job, hour, day, or week), furnish your own tools, and control your own activities (such as the hours you work), you may be covered as a self-employed person. In this case, you would report your earning at the end of the year, if, after expenses, you clear $400 or more.

Q -- Why must I lose some of my social security benefits if I earn over $1680 in a year?

A -- The basic purpose of social security benefits is to replace in part earnings lost as a result of the retirement, death or disability of the family breadwinner. If you work and have earnings over $1680 per year, it is assumed that you have not had the complete income loss that social security is intended to replace.

Q -- I recently lost my billfold which contained my social security card among other things. My employer insists on seeing the card so he may get my number. How can I get another card since I work all day long and don't want to take time off from work to came to the social security office?

A -- It is no longer necessary for you to go into the social security office to get another social security card. If you telephone the nearest office either Monterey or Salinas - we can take the information by phone and get you another card with your old number in about 10 days or less.

Circassian Chicken

Circassian chicken, otherwise known as Sherkasiya, is a variation of boiled chicken from the Russian steppes.

For this you will need:

1 chicken;
3 onces each of shelled walnuts, almods and hazelnuts paprika;
cayenner;
salt;
2 chopped onions;
butter.

Boil the chicken in the usual way; cut it into four pieces and arrange in the center of a dish of boiled rice.

To make the sauce to go with this, pound the walnuts, almonds and hazelnuts in a mortar with paprika cayenne and salt to taste. Fry the chopped onions in butter and add the pounded nuts and a little chicken stock.

When the sauce is thick, pour it over the chicken.

Makes 4 servings.

Corvairs Can Get Free Test Service Now

An urgeant appeal to all Chevrolet Corvair owners has been issued by the California State Automobile Association to have their cars tested for possible dangerous levels of carbon monoxide inside the passenger compartment.

The CSAA is offering the facilities of its Diagnostic Clinic free of charge, for an indefinite period, to all Corvair owners for carbon monoxide texting.

Recent studies of the situation, including a special consumer protection buletin of the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, have indicated that a number of 1961 through 1969 Corvair models admit significant quantities of carbon monoxide through the heater system into the passenger compartment.

The Corvair's heating system, beginning in 1961, was designed so that the air used to cool the engine passes directly into the passenger compartment after being heated by the engine. A malfunction of the exhaust system may cause carbon monoxide and other fumes to enter the passenter compartment through the car's heating system.

Carbon monoxide is an odorless, colorless gas which can induce drowsiness, nausea and, in sufficient quantities, cause permanent brain damage and death. Levels too low to do permanent harm can seriously affect one's driving ability.

Since it is both odorless and invisible, the presence of carbon monoxide usually cannot be detected by the driver.

Because of the potential hazards of the situation, Robert W. Graver, CSAA assistant vice president of Public Services, emphasized the importance of all Corvair owners having their cars checked for carbon monoxide leakage as soon as possible.

"The driver of a Corvair with this defect is not only risking his own health and safety, but, because his driving may be affected, he is also a risk to other motorists and pedestrians," Graver said.

Graver urged all Corvair owners to have their cars checked without delay and emphasized that the CSAA would perform this check at its Diagnostic Clinic free of charge.

"This service is offered to any Corvair owner, whether he is an AAA member or not," Graver said." "Although our Clinic does not perform any repairs, if a car is leaking carbon monoxide into the passenger compartment, our technicians will assist the owner in determining what is causing the problem so he can have it repaired," Graver added.

Aptitude Testing At Monterey HS

The Armed Services Aptitude Battery Test will be given at Monterey High School on November 9 at 8 a.m. This series of tests is designed to measure aptitudes in occupations common in the military services. The occupational areas covered are electronics, general mechanical, motor mechanical, clerical administrative and general technical.

The military jobs in these fields closely parallel those in civilian industry and business. Students planning to work or train in a job in one of these feilds may benefit from taking this test to help determine their potential. Those interested in joining a military service after graduation will be able to determine in advance their qualifications for specific jobs.

The test is offered as a public service at no cost to the school with no obligation on behalf of the student and is open to boys and girls. Individual copies of the results will be furnished to the students tested, as well as to the school counselors.

Interested high school students should contact their counselor for further information. The test will begin promptly at 8 a.m. and will take approximately 2 1/2 hours.

"Peanuts" Creator AT SJSC

Cartoonist Charles M. Schulz, creator of the "Peanuts" cartoon strip, will speak at San Jose State College Friday, November 19, as the second guest of the newly-formed Presidential Speakers Forum.

The free talk, co-sponsored by the Journalisum Departments is set for Morris Dailey Auditorium at 12 noon.

Schulz's famed comic strip character Charlie Brown, Lucy, Linus and Snoopy are known throughout the world in their own right for their individual personalities and quirks. The strip is carried in more than 700 newspapers in North American and 70 papers in other parts of the world.

Schulz claims he is "100 percent Charlie Brown. Sixty million people read about the dumb things I did when I was little."

Schulz was born in Minneapolis in 1922 and was nicknamed "Sparky" for a horse in a comic strip. He skipped a grade in school, but then made up for it by flunking a variety of subjects.

The Presidential Speakers forum was established by SJSC President John H. Bunzel this fall to bring guest speakers to campus. Other speakers scheduled this year include Dr. Nathan Glazer and Dr. Bruno Bettleheim.

Program May Expand

Public acceptance and commercial success of privately operated tourist information boards at State Highway roadside rest areas indicates that the State would benefit from expansion of the program, the California Highway Commission was told recently.

Meeting in Monterey, the Commission heard a report from State Public Works Director James A. Moe that said his Department is planning to slicit proposals for the development of new information facilities at the Hunter Hill rest area on Interstate 80 north of Valle o, the Crystal Springs rest area on Interstate 280 near San Mateo and at the Golden Gate Bridge rest area on Rout 101 at the nort end of the Golden Gate Bridge.

Moe's decision came following the conclusion of a pilot program to demonstrate the feasibility of private enterprise tourist kiosks at roadside rest areas.

The first pilot installation was completed by Pacific United Services Corporation at the Los Flores Vista Point on Interstate 5 north of Ocean side in December 1970.

The operation was monitored continuously and five public opinion surveys were conducted.

An additional test facility was completed in August, 1971, at the Cactus City roadside rest on Interstate 10, twelve miles east of Indio.

The pilot projects and motorists opinion polls indicate that construction and operation of tourist information facilities within well located rest facilities are commercially feasible, Moe said.

The opinion surveys indicate overwhelming public acceptance of the program. Over 99 percent of the motorists interviewed felt that the information kioks added to the convenience and enoyment of the stop and the similar facilities should be provided in other readside rest areas.

Moe said his policy is to devote 40 percent of the display space to non-commercial public service information. There are indications that private industry is willing to sponsor and provide this information at no cost to the State. The Automobile Club of Southern California has furnished public information at the Cactus City areas and is interested in providing the public service at other rest area locations.

The Public Works Director feels that more sophisticated unmanned facilities including audio and audio visual messages could be commercially feasible in well-situated rest areas. A number of firms have indicated an interes in providing these sophisticated facilities with greater public service and commercial information potentials in roadside rests.

Moe said that the roadside rest ringint the San Francisco Bay Area offer the best locations for commercially feasible construction of the sophisticated information facilities. Offers and proposals will be solicited from all parties which have expressed an interest and would be evaluated on the basis of architectural compatibility with the roadside rest, convenience and magnitude of public information services rendered, and income to the Department.

He told the Commission "a number of exciting and innovative proposals will be generated and that the facilities will offer substantial benefits to the motoring public, local business and the Highway facility."

BACK TO NATURE

About 20 percent of last year's visitors to California's public lands participated in camping.

22 Named By Nixon As Controllers Of Phase Two

Last Friday President Nixon named the 22 members of the Pay Board and the Price Commission, the two agencies who will create and administer the controls of Phase Two of the Administration's economic stabilization program.

Fifteen men were named to the Pay Board -- one-third representing lablr, one-third business and the remainder the public.

ONE BLACK

The seven members chosen for the Price Commission included one Black -- William T. Coleman, Jr., a Philadelphia attorney -- and one woman, Dr. Marina von Neumann Whitman, professor of economics at the University of Pittsburgh. All represent the public.

Coleman, who is a partner in the law firm of Dilworth, Paxson, Kalish, Levy and Coleman, helped draft the brief that led to the 1954 Supreme Court decision outlawing public school segregation and was also instrumental in the desegregation of Girard College in Philadelphia. He served as chairman of the White House Conference on Civil Rights in 1965.

Coleman was born in the Germantown section of Philadelphia 50 years ago. He was graduated summa cum laude from the University of Pennsylvania in 1941 and magna cum laude from Harvard University Law School in 1946. He was law secretary to Supreme Court Justice Felix Frankfurter in 1948-49. He has been a consultant to the Arms Control and Disarmament Agency.

The other members of the Price Commission are William W. Scanton, president of the National Municipal League and former Governor of Pennsylvania; John W. Queene, recently retired as a managing partner in the accounting firm of Haskin & Sells; James W. Newman, vice chairman of the National Bureau of Economic Research, and Robert F. Lansillott, professor of economics and dean of the college of business of the University of Florida.

CHAIRMEN

Named as chairman of the Price Commission was C. Jackson Grayson, Jr., dean of Southern Mwthodist University's school of business. United States District Court Judge George H. Boldt of Washington was chosen to chair the 15-member Pay Board. Boldt, who intends to retire from the federal judiciary to head the board, presided over the Seattle Seven conspiracy trial. It was he who issued the warrant for the arrest of 19-year-old Leslie Bacon as a material witness in the case against the Seattle Seven, who were accused of conspiring to damage Seattle's federal courthouse. The warrant was later voided.

Labor members of the tripartite Pay Board are George Meany, president of the AFL-CIO; I.W. Abel, president of the United Steelworkers of America; Frank E. Fitzsimmons, president of the International Brotherhood of Teamsters; Leonard F. Woodcock, president of the United Automobile Workers, and Floyd E. Smith, president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Business representatives are Robert C. Bassett, president of Vertical Marketing, Inc., Chicago magazine publishing company; Benjamin F. Biaggini, president and chief executive of the Continental Oil Company, and Rocco C. Siciliano, president of The T.I. Corporation, Los Angeles holding company for title insurance operations.

FOR PUBLIC

Public members of the Pay Board are, in addition to Judge Boldt, William G. Caples, president of Kenyon College, a small liberal arts institution in Ohio; Kermit Gordon, president of the Brookings Institution who has held several government posts; Dr. Neil H. Jacoby, professor of business economics and policy at the Graduate School of Management at UCLA, and Arnold R. Weber, who resigned his post as executive director of the Cost of Living Council to accept the appointment to the Pay Board. Weber was formerly deputy director of the Office of Management and Budget.

Several members of the two new agencies met together shortly after their appointment to plan their first working meeting, which was expected to take place early this week. Meany and several other labor representatives did not attend.

MAKE HASTE

The two agencies have very little time -- only until November 13, the date when the current 90-day freeze on wages and prices expires -- to establish standards and criteria for economic controls in the post-freeze period.

Quick answers are needed to three basic questions about Phase Two controls:

*Which segments of the economy will be required to obtain prior approval for wage and price increases, which will be required to report after making the increases and which will have no reporting requirements?

*Will the Pay Board and Price Commission adopt general guidelines for wage and price adjustments or will they make decisions on a case-by-case basis?

*What disposition will be made of contractual wage increases deferred during the wage freeze?

SWING VOTE

The public members of the Pay Board represent the swing vote between labor and business. This agency has been promised autonomy by the Administration but Secretary of the Treasury John Connally and President Nixon are expected to watch their deliberations anxiously.

The White House and many economists believe that the President's target of cutting the rate of inflation in half--to a level of 2 to 3 percent by the end of 1972 -- can be achieved only if the general average of permissible wage increases does not exceed between 5 and 6 percent a year.

Inflation cannot be controlled, they believe, if large unions continue to extract annual increases of 8 and 10 percent and even more.

AUTONOMOUS

Labor leaders had refused to serve on the Pay Board unless it was given considerable autonomy because they are convinced that big business welcomes every opportunity to hold down wages and favors rigid wage guidelines.

Labor's fears could be met if the Pay Board considered wage increases only one case at a time, thus allowing a general average standard to develop over a period of months.

Such actions would not give the Price Commission any overall target and the result would be a huge bureaucracy which President Nixon is determined to avoid. He has already committed the government to reviewing the wage and price decisions of only the largest and most significant industries.

Another group of enterprises will be free to act at will, but must notify the Pay Board and Price Commission of its decisions.

A third cateory of business will be allowed to raise wages and prices on faith, subject only to later inspection and protest.

Definition of these categories is to be made by the Cost of Living Council, headed by Treasury Secretary Connally. This must be done before the wage-price freeze ends or members of the second and third categories will have no way of knowing how to conduct their affairs as of November 14. General guidelines issued by the Pay Board could resolve this deadlock.

President Nixon had hoped to get the Phase Two agencies into motion earlier so that they would have more time to develop Phase II. Winning labor leaders' agreement to participate and recruiting the other members of the committees proved to be so time consuming that only three weeks remained after their selection before Phase II was scheduled to go into effect.

Meany strongly believes that all wage increases deferred during the freeze should be honored and should include retroactive payment. He said, "I have made it quite clear that my own position is that that money is coming to those workers and they should get it any way they can get it."

Date provided by the Labor Department's Bureau of Labor Statistics said deferred wage increases effective this year were due more than five million workers and averaged 7.8 percent, compared with 5.6 percent in 1970.

FREEZE LEGAL

The first major legal test of President's Nixon's new economic policies occured last week when a three-man District Court of Appeals in Washington, D.C., upheld the constitutionality of the law on which the Phase Two controls program is based.

The Amalgamated Meat Cutters and Butchers of North America had asked the court to declare the Economic Stabilization Act of 1970 as unconstitutional on the grounds that it constituted an improper delegation of power by Congress to the President.

The union had also sought an injunction against members of the Cost of Living Council requiring them to stop carrying out the law by freezing wages and prices.

The court said that "the Constitution did not forbid a Congress concerned with controlling inflation from coping with escalating expectations by calling on the shock of a general Presidential freeze to check the inflationary psychology...We see no merit in the contention that the act is constitutionally defective because the timing of the imposition of controls was delegated to the President."

The Congress, according to the court, had not given the President an illegal "blank check" to run the economy, which was the union's contention.

Only appeal of the decision is to the Supreme Court. An attorney for the union said such an appeal was under consideration, but no decision had been made.

Problems Of Black Youth Attending White Colleges Discussed By Task Force

Despite highly publicized recruitment efforts, black students still comprise an average of only 3 percent of total enrollment in predominantly white colleges and universities, according to a newly issued task force report on higher education.

Hailed by top government officials in the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, the task force report was made possible by a Ford Foundation grant. Its chairman was Frank Newman, associate director of university relations at Stanford.

"The impression has sometimes been created that colleges are overcommitted to minorities and that quotas of 10 to 22 percent are common," the report notes. Yet, in fact, "blacks as a percent of total enrollment are barely holding their own."

Census reports show that black enrollment as a percent of the national total actually declined between 1964 and 1966, and has risen "very gradually" since then:

Total enrollment in 1964 in all colleges, including those predominantly black, was 4,643,000, of which 5 percent--234,000--were black. In 1966, out of a total enrollment of 5,999,000, black students numbered 282,000 or 4.7 percent, the lowest percentage recorded between 1964 and 1969. The 1969 figures were 7,435,000 total enrollment, of which 6.6 percent--492,000--were black.

Other studies show that black enrollment may be lower than these figures indicate. While different admissions standards clearly have been used for admission of some minority students, the report continues, "there is little or no evidence of any change in degree standards.

"The career performance of blacks seems roughly comparable to that of other students."

Contrary to public impression, it notes, "black students by and large are concerned with acquiring an education.

"The typical (college) disrupter is white and middle class...

"Most of the evidence available from various colleges shows that the average grades of blacks are somewhat lower than the average grades of all students," the report notes. "However, there is some limited evidence that blacks who persist in their studies perform somewhat better in college than would have been predicted" on the basis of traditional admission criteria.

Since many blacks have had little exposure to good secondary schools, the report explains "it is not surprising that high school grades and Scholastic Apitude Test scores are, as a whole, significantly lower for black entrants than they are for college entrants."

Unless some improvement can be made in the secondary schools blacks attend, the weak background these institutions now offer blacks in mathematics and science will prove a "recalcitrant barrier" to increasing the number of blacks in medicine, science and engineering.

While data on the proportion of blacks who continue to completion of a college degree are "mixed," blacks at selective institutions clearly have "much higher" persistence rates than those at unselective institutions, the report finds.

"In part, this happens because students are admitted to selective schools; in part, because students at selective institutions have a high expectation of success, whereas, at unselective institutions, dropping out is the norm....

On the whole, we conclude that large numbers of black students can perform close to existing standards at all types of colleges and universities. With well-run special programs, high risk students are more likey to stay in college.

"Persistence rates for blacks at many institutions will approach the average for all students, but, at the least selective colleges, dropout rates remain discouragingly high; grades will likely continue to be lower. This fact may not have much bearing on those who persist to graduation, however, in terms of later careers."

"Minority students as a group aspire to more years of education than do whites. Today, when college is more important to mobility than ever before, and when family pressures to succeed are so intense, this force on minority students is a crucial factor in minority education.

"What distinguishes minority students from other groups that have used higher education as an average of mobility is that today's minorities can never really leave their communities. 'Going to college' has always carried with a measure of 'you can't go home again'; but today's minorities have to live with the converse-that you can't leave your ethnic or racial idenity behind.

"This conflict of being community successes and failures....

"Yet few faculty and administrators...seem to appreciate what a cruel dilemma this is, nor what a hostile and threatening environment the campus can be for a minority student. Some institutions are grappling with this dichotomy through such devices as ethnic study programs or, on a braoder scale, community programs. We see no easy path ahead for its resolution...

"Most minority student programs, through recruiting, tutoring, counseling, etc., attempt to adapt the minority student to conventional colleges. More ingenuity and effort must go into experimenting with varying forms of education that adapt college to the minority student. New kinds of inner city institutions must be created, with special curriculum and faculty. One potential new approach to supplement conventional colleges may be greater use of television coupled with neighborhood tutoring centers...

SCLC Head Plans Counter-Campaign

Plans for a "counter-campaign" were announced by Dr. Ralph David Abernathy, president of the Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC), in a recent speaking engagement in Elkins, West Virginia.

Dr. Abernathy spoke at Davis and Elkins College at the invitation of a group of citizens who scheduled a "counter rally" immediately after President Richard Nixon was to crown the queen of the Mountain State Forest Festival in Elkins.

Dr. Abernathy said SCLC's plans include "counter campaigns" in a number of presidential primaries. For example he said, in the first 1972 presidential primary in New Hampshire next March 7, SCLC may open a "Soul Force" office, help organize students and other voters and follow candidates around the state to "raise issues when the politicians won't raise them."

He said SCLC would be active in the process of selecting delegates to local, state and national conventions.

COALITION URGED

Dr. Abernathy said "the arithmetic of power" could add up to victories for progressive forces in 1972.

This arithmetic, he explained, could include a political majority of Black people, other minorities, young people "and all other people concerned about peace and justice."

He added that "no politician, no candidate, no political party," should be allowed to avoid the issues or "take us for granted."

Another of his proposals was for a "political agenda" which would be taken to candidates in 1972 with the demand that they respond to it. The agenda would include an end to the war in Vietnam, an all-out assault on poverty and racism, a reordering of priorities and a redistribution of wealth and privilege and a demand that the politicians begin to tell the truth to the people. "I am tired of lies about Vietnam, about Attica, about Kent State, Jackson State and Orangeburg, about economic injustice," he said.

He said that if the people can not stop the war, racist policies and poverty now, they can at least turn out of office those politicians who are not solving the nation's problems.

Jackson Explains Boycotts

Reverend Jesse Jackson, head of "Operation Breadbasket," recently said he utilizes boycotts of chain stores as a defensive maneuver to break up white exploitation.

The Chicago-based minister and aide to the late Martin Luther King said that a major chain store's margin of profit might be as little as one or two percent of its sales volume.

"This means eassentially that if you can stop two out of every 100 people from going into those stores, you can sufficiently affect the margin of profit."

The minister said that his church convenes for worship on Saturday, rather than Sunday, because it is Saturday the economic pharaohs exploit.

Alternate Measure Is Considered

A bill designed to achieve dispersal of low-income and moderate income housing in the suburbs is expected to be introduced soon in Congress.

The bill will call for creation of a housing agency in each major city that would plan the construction and location of housing throughout the metropolitan area.

The bill will also authorize grants to communities to help pay for expanded sewage and water system and for such services as schools and police to accommodate the families living in the low-income homes.

The plan will be presented to Congress by the subcommittee on housing of the House Banking and Currency Committee.

It is considered an alternative to President Nixon's policy on housing, which does not press for open or low-income housing in the suburbs.

Civil rights leaders and some members of Congress are critical of President Nixon's stance as ineffective in ending the pattern of poor minority persons being concentrated in the central cities, unable to compete in the growing job markets in the suburbs.

The proposed bill will be introduced as part of an omnibus housing bill that the housing subcommittee has been preparing for several months.

It is considered significant, in that it is evidence that Congress has taken the initiative in housing legislation since President Nixon assumed office and because it may open up the whole politically sensitive issue of low-income housing for minority groups.

While some Congressional proponents have said they do not think low-income housing "is practical or desirable" for every suburban community they say there should be some method of changing the housing patterns so that the poor will no longer isolated from job opportunities.

While under the measure a disproportionate share of subsidized units could not be built in a city without its consent, the city could get a payment of up to $3,000 per unit to cover part of the cost of providing public services and utilities needed to serve the additional units.

The legislation would put emphasis on saving and rehabilitating present housing and better management practices.

Research Is Promising

A highly effective way of unmasking hidden cancer viruses in living cells has been discovered by scientists at the National Institutes of Health in Washington, D.C.

The method is considered of great potential value in the search for human cancer viruses. It also may show promise for studies of a key issue in cellular biology involving the mechanisms by which a cell activates or deactivates portions of its own set of genetic blueprints.

LAB TESTS

In laboratory experiments, the method has activated leukemia viruses in mice with high efficiency, coaxing the complete virus particles forth in as many as one in 1,000 mouse embryo cells. Under other techniques, only one virus particle in every million cells was found.

The new method resulted in viruses being found in tissue cultures that had been growing for many months with no sign that the viruses were present.

If a comparable feat could be accomplished with human cancer tissue, research workers might harvest copious amounts of virus with which to work, assuming that there are human cancer viruses at the root of some cancers in man. Whether viruses cause some cancers is one of the key questions of modern cancer research.

While harvesting viruses from human cancer cells would not determine what causes cancer, it would give scientists a much better chance to prove whether or not those viruses are at least part of the cause.

SCIENTISTS REPORT

A report of the new method has been published in a recent issue of Science, weekly technical journal of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. The authors were Drs. D.R. Lowy, W.P. Rowe, Natalie Teich and J.W. Hartley of the Laboratory of Viral Diseases of the National Institute of Allergy and Infections Disease, a unit of the National Institutes of Health.

Dr. Rowe, who heads the laboratory, said the new method suggested strongly that the genetic material of the mouse leukemia virus was present in every cell of the mouse destined to develop leukemia.

This lends support to the so-called oncogene theory of cancer, which holds that genetic instructions capable of turning healthy cells into cancer cells are present in all animal and human cells and await only some event that can activate the instructions. The presumption is that cancer viruses may appear as a result of this activation.

KEY DRUGS

The key to the new work was the discovery that two drugs were potent activators of viruses in embryo cells of a strain of mice known to be highly leukemia-prone. The drugs, known by the abbreviations IUDR and BUDR, are both known to be capable of being incorporated in a cell's stock of DNA, the master chemical contained in all living cells' genetic makeup.

The drugs caused the viruse particles to appear in cells where they were otherwise hidden a few days after the drugs were administered to the cells.

Interference Is Charged By Prisoner

A Black inmate at a federal prison in Texarkana, Texas, has sued to stop prison officials from interfering with his mail, reading matter and visitors.

Walter Collins has charged that Warden L. M. Connett and William C. Storm, supervisor of education at the prison, have kept him from getting certain books. He says they told him he had "already received too many books."

Collins also says he has been barred from mailing certain letters on grounds they are "undesirable." The prisoner, who is a draft resister, has been getting mail from all over the United States and has been trying to answer it.

The warden is also accused of refusing to allow Carl Braden, information director for the Southern Conference Educational Fund (SCEF), from visiting Collins. Braden drove to the prison from Louisville, Kentucky, but was denied admittance to the visiting room.

SPEAKING TOUR

Braden and Mrs. Virginia Collins, the prisoner's mother, have been touring the United States since April in a campaign to free Collins. They charge he was illegally imprisoned because his draft board was made up in violation of the law.

Collins was sentenced to five years after he refused to be drafted because his New Orleans draft board was all-white and included a chairman who lived in another county.
